Table1

&lt;sup>2</sup> Act XC of 2010, which prohibits banks from registering a mortgage under a foreign currency loan, entered into force on 14 August 2010. This has been reflected in a decline in foreign currency lending. The greater-than-zero amount of new foreign currency lending is explained by the opportunity to redenominate foreign currency loans disbursed earlier or transfer of debt. (For more details, see the methodological notes.)

The average APRC on forint loans to the non-financial corporate sector of up to the equivalent of EUR 1 million remained unchanged and that on forint loans of over the equivalent of EUR 1 million rose. The average APRC on euro loans to the non-financial corporate sector of up to the equivalent of EUR 1 million remained unchanged and that on euro loans of over the equivalent of EUR 1 million fell relative to March.

New business of forint loans to the non-financial corporate sector of up to and over the equivalent of EUR 1 million barely changed. New business of euro loans of up to and over the equivalent of EUR 1 million fell relative to the previous month.

Monthly average interest rates on non-financial corporations' forint deposits remained broadly unchanged and those on euro deposits fell. New business of forint and euro deposits fell significantly relative to March.
