The costs and benefits of bank capital - a review of the literature, 24/06/2019 https://www.bis.org/bcbs/publ/wp37.pdf This paper also suggests a set of issues which warrant further monitoring and research. This includes the link between capital and the cost and probability of crises, accounting for the effects of liquidity regulations, resolution regimes and counter-cyclical capital buffers, and the impact of regulation on loan quantities. Keywords: Credit risk, Liquidity risk, Market risk Related press release: https://www.bis.org/press/p190624.htm	BIS/BCBS Publication + Press Release
Big tech in finance: opportunities and risks, 23/06/2019 https://www.bis.org/publ/arpdf/ar2019e3.pdf The entry of large technology firms (“big techs”) into financial services holds the promise of efficiency gains and can enhance financial inclusion. Regulators need to ensure a level playing field between big techs and banks, taking into account big techs’ wide customer base, access to information and broad-ranging business models. Big techs’ entry presents new and complex trade-offs between financial stability, competition and data protection. Related press release: https://www.bis.org/press/p190623.htm	BIS Publication + Press Release
Progress in implementation of G20 financial regulatory reforms, 25/06/2019 https://www.fsb.org/wp-content/uploads/R250619-2.pdf This summary implementation progress report was delivered to G20 Leaders ahead of their Summit in Osaka from 28-29 June 2019. The report finds that the new financial regulatory framework called for by the G20 is now largely in place. Implementation is well underway, including further progress since the 2018 Summit. These reforms make the financial system more resilient, and thereby reduce the likelihood and severity – and associated public cost – of future financial crises. However, despite continued progress, implementation is not complete and remains uneven across reform areas. The challenges in meeting the agreed dates relate to domestic legislative or rule-making processes; concerns over the pace of implementation in other jurisdictions; and difficulties faced by regulated entities in adjusting to the new requirements.	FSB Report

Housing markets and macroeconomic risks, 25/06/2019 https://www.oecd-ilibrary.org/docserver/737133d8-en.pdf?Expires=1561556736&id=id&accname=guest&checksum=2DCB6D02C9977484429E6752F9102610 Housing markets are large and highly volatile: they can thus create large macroeconomic risks. The current paper provides a bird's eye view of where the housing markets of major OECD economies currently stand. It then uses the results of recently developed models to provide indications of where macroeconomic risks exist. Finally, the paper draws on recent empirical analyses to suggest how economic policies can enhance economic resilience by reducing housing-related risks through macroprudential measures and housing market reforms (such as changes in rent regulation, taxation and land use policies).
